Fanatics, Inc. is the global leader of officially licensed sports merchandise and the creation of e-commerce visionary and former chairman and CEO of GSI Commerce, Michael Rubin. Fanatics prides itself on being the brand of the fan, offering the widest assortment of unique products across all leagues and teams, college and pro, for both North America-based and international sports. Fanatics, while running its own websites also partners with hundreds of leagues and teams worldwide, running sites and fulfilling product for the NFL, NBA, MLB, NHL, MLS, Browns, Bengals, Knicks, Chicago Fire, Manchester City, Bama, Texas Longhorns, Ohio University, and the Cincinnati Bearcats to name only a few.

Fanatics started within GSI with Rubin's e-commerce deal with NASCAR in 2002. In 2011, Rubin bought a Florida-based sports e-commerce business called Fanatics that included two brick-and-mortar stores in Jacksonville, Fla., and rolled it into GSI. That same year, Rubin sold GSI to eBay for $2.4 billion and bought back the sports e-commerce part of the business. By then the brand included online stores for all the North American sports leagues and hundreds of teams and colleges. Rubin kept the name Fanatics for the new company.

Over the past several years Fanatics has evolved from a domestic e-commerce company into a new breed of retailer – part tech company, part manufacturer, part logistics company, part wholesaler and part e-commerce expert – by putting more of an emphasis on manufacturing, omnichannel retail, data and technology.

Fanatics went global in 2016, acquiring UK-based online retailer Kitbag to begin its foray into the global football (soccer) landscape, while also offering easy access to a wide assortment of North American-based sports apparel to fans worldwide. Since then, Fanatics has expanded its international vertical-commerce (V-Commerce) model globally, opening offices, fulfillment centers and manufacturing hubs in Canada, Germany, Honduras, Hong Kong, India, Japan and Spain.

One of the company's largest fulfillment centers is based in Frazeytsburg, Ohio and spans more than 500K SF, featuring sports merchandise, hard goods and apparel for hundreds of pro and college teams. During the company's Peak season (Thanksgiving through Christmas) more than 2,200 employees are hired to meet the demand of the busy holiday season, in addition to the ~350 full-time employees.

To keep up with the company's tremendous growth and accelerate its scale, in May 2017 Fanatics acquired sports apparel company, Majestic, greatly expanding manufacturing, distribution and wholesale capabilities worldwide. Later in 2017, Fanatics closed a $1 billion funding round led by SoftBank's Vision Fund, the largest tech fund in history. The funding round also included significant investments from the NFL, MLB, NHL, MLS and NFLPA.

Fanatics consumers are digitally-savvy and have a phone-first purchasing mentality, allowing them instant access to express passion for their favorite teams and players through real-time merchandise in today's on-demand world. Women's apparel is one of the company's fastest growing categories.

The company was most recently valued at $4.5B and reported revenues of over $2.3B in 2018. Fanatics is committed to making an impact and giving back to the communities in which we live and operate through a variety of philanthropic efforts that directly support nonprofit organizations. Locally Fanatics supports local EMS, the Fieldhouse, local high schools, the Carr Cake Center Auction, Festival of Trees, local benefits, and was recognized with Coshocton County's 2019 Employer Award for its partnership with Hopewell Industries for the environment Fanatics creates for their clients with DD.
